Citadelle Gin Reserve 2012

Gin was a French product as much as an English one in the 1700s, but it had dropped off the spirits map by 1989 when the folks at Cognac Ferrand launched Citadelle. Produced in Charentais (Cognac) copper pot stills (which must be heated a special way as per French law), Citadelle is lush, smooth and full of flavor. Throw it in oak barrels for six months and you have this pale yellow limited reserve, ideal for adding depth to G&Ts or martinis. 44% ABV, $35
