HOLIDAY GIFT GUIDE 2013: SPIRITS

Spirits are surprisingly smart gifts: better bottles boast beautiful design, they're easily shared among friends and family, they come in a range of sizes from minis to magnums, and hapless procrastinators can always pick up a bottle on december 24 if push comes to shove. But rather than purchase something classic or familiar, we suggest you blow boozers' minds with something new. Our holiday-approved list below includes a gin, a vodka, a whisky, a tequila, a cognac, and a scotch to please all palates.

Citadelle Réserve Gin Vintage 2013

Though gin is usually considered the best spirit for playing nicely with mixers in cocktails, some people really like its flavor on its own. This gin is for them. The limited-edition 2013 Réserve bottling begins with Citadelle's 19-botanicals gin and then ages for a few months in American oak, Pineau des Charentes, and cognac casks. The woodiness does not overtake the juniper notes, so it's still appropriate in classic cocktails like martinis, Martinezes, and pink gins—or just pour it over ice.
